BATTERSEA BLACK PENDANT LIGHT #2

$415

DESCRIPTION

Drawing inspiration from the Battersea Power Station also featured on Pink Floyd's "Animals" album, this ceramic lamp was designed by Colin Patrick Dinley for Toscot. The pendant is distinguished for its meticulous vintage details, notably the bands along the neck and textured dots on the underside of the pendant. The streamlined bell-shaped silhouette and deep glaze enhance the dramatic character of the piece. An elegant union of old and new, this industrial-inspired ceramic lamp will be a bold fixture in a living room, dining room, or private study. The pendant light can reach a height of 150cm including the electrical wire.
